PROFILE SUMMARY

I am a Senior Community Manager and Developer Ecosystem Leader with over years of experience building, scaling, and sustaining high-impact communities across global tech ecosystems. I specialize in creating inclusive, value-driven environments that foster meaningful engagement, collaboration, and long-term community growth.

I have successfully built and scaled developer and tech communities from early stages to over 5,000+ active members, and founded a global women-in-tech community supporting over 6,000 women across 75 countries, with over 2,000 trained through structured learning and mentorship programs.

I bring strong expertise in community strategy, engagement lifecycle design, event planning, ambassador programs, and developer experience. I am passionate about building communities that not only create belonging and trust but also support product adoption, engineering excellence, and business growth.

I am a strong communicator with excellent verbal and written skills, highly adaptable, empathetic, and experienced in working with multicultural, global communities. I am committed to building sustainable communities that empower members while delivering measurable organizational impact.
